

CLINICAL METHODS IN MODERN CARDIOLOGY AND UPDATE SESSIONS - 2012

INDIAN ASSOCIATION OF CLINICAL CARDIOLOGISTS
KERALA CHAPTER

IMA Hall, Kaloor
Cochin, Kerala
6th May 2012

Dear Colleague,

Despite significant and continued advances, our understanding of Clinical Cardiology remains imperfect. As investigations forge ahead in the fields of biology, genetics, immunology, imagiology, etc., new aspects have emerged which reveal the uncertainty of their correlation with clinical presentation. Conversely, progress in the treatment and prevention of serious complications has encouraged the pursuit of greater knowledge about such diseases, which very often are inherited cardiovascular diseases.

At the forefront of this pursuit is the Working Group on Clinical Cardiology of Indian Association of Clinical Cardiology which brings together all those interested in this area of medical knowledge. However, the Working Group also has a duty to discuss the clinical aspects of these diseases with the wider community of cardiologists and attract them to the field of Clinical Cardiology. The update provides an excellent opportunity to do so.

We cordially invite all physicians and post graduate Cardiology students who are interested in Clinical Cardiology to come and take part in a challenging scientific programme while taking in the beauty of the enchanting city of Cochin, a mix of the old and the new.

We look forward to meeting you, this May in Cochin.
