The acute need for clinical cardiologists in India's age

Urban India is now on the threshold of becoming the disease capital of the world. It is being confronted with an alarming increased incidence of lifestyle-related diseases like heart attacks, high blood pressure, diabetes mellitus, cancer, chronic respiratory diseases, kidney failure etc. At the same time, look at the urban poor and rural India; they are struggling with communicable disease such as tuberculosis, gastrointestinal infections, typhoid fever and a new host of viral infections. Most unfortunately, apart from this, rural India is also afflicted with higher occurrence of non-communicable lifestyle-related diseases. This represents a serious challenge that the Indian healthcare systems needs to urgently address.

We have to realize that the most common cause of mortality of our population is cardiovascular disease, of which heart attack is the most important killer of all. The bitter reality is that heart attacks affect our urban and rural population alike today. The Kerala ACS registry has shown us that only 12 per cent of ST elevation myocardial infarctions are treated by primary angioplasty; and this is the best form of treatment as per the current guidelines. Ironically, this is the dismal situation in the most developed state of India - Kerala - which has 85 catheterization laboratories and 25 medical colleges. A large majority of patients with heart attacks seek treatment in the small and medium sized hospitals, where expert cardiologists may not be available. Even in the larger hospitals, we find that 24-hour coverage by an interventional cardiologist for angioplasty is seldom seen. What really happens to the majority of our heart attack patients? Those who reach the hospital early are treated by physicians and they undergo thrombolysis with streptokinase as many patients could not afford tenectopase. The social impact of a heart attack in a family, often, for the only earning member, has to be realized by the medical profession. Every patient would like to have treatment with angioplasty or tenectopase. However, the grim reality is that people cannot afford it nor does the government provide it free of cost even in government medical colleges.

It is in this scenario that it becomes imperative that the necessary steps need to be adopted to improve the basic cardiology facilities in the smaller and medium hospitals. Kerala government hospitals do not even have one cath lab outside medical college hospitals. Kerala Government health service has only 4 DM trained cardiologists in service. The availability of trained clinical cardiologists in the small and medium sized hospitals will definitely improve early detection and treatment of heart attacks in our community. We need trained personell in large numbers in rural as well as community hospitals. We need doctors trained in history taking, clinical examination, electrocardiography and echocardiography. Besides, we also need doctors who can set up small intensive care units and echo laboratories in every small and medium sized hospital in India. We need doctors who can make early diagnosis and select patients for thrombolytic therapy. Patients should be able to get competent doctors to give thrombolytic therapy. They should be able to choose the patients who need cath and angio and possible intervention and refer them to bigger centres. In the most modern state of Kerala, thrombolytic therapy is still the most affordable and easily available treatment for acute coronary syndrome. Kerala ACS registry has again stressed that 19% of their patients were wrongly diagnosed and given thrombolysis. This is due to the sheer ignorance of the medical profession to properly triage their patients.

On the contrary, look at the scenario in the U.S. In a recent JACC article, Ephrem and colleagues have said that 'Incentives for more and more super specialization will be reversed and a clinical cardiologist will be recognized with a higher value, diminishing the demand for procedural skills. This holds good in the after-care of cardiac patients. The Kerala ACS registry has again shown that patients were often discharged without beta-blockers, ACE inhibitors and even statins.' For providing the long-term care of our patients for optimal medical management, clinical cardiologists irrefutably, play a very pivotal role. Wishing the best for the annual meeting of clinical cardiologists of India. May the society scale great heights of success.

In 2008, a feeling of change was electrifying among the clinical cardiologists across India. We, the members of IACC, were being presented with the Clinical Cardiology Association of India, and the first association to focus on preventive cardiology as well as clinical cardiology. It was right then, more than ever, we felt that what we had been told as infants in cardiology; anyone could be a Clinical Cardiologist, might be true. Until that move to form Indian Association of Clinical Cardiologists (IACC), it had only seemed that only interventional cardiologists can practice general cardiology. This milestone grabbed the attention of the entire nation, and certainly made more Clinical Cardiologists than ever sit up and take notice. At that time, we began to wonder what it was that doctors really wanted to see happen, and more pointedly, if they were Clinical Cardiologists, what would they change?. We got a little help from the pioneers in cardiology like Padmashree Prof.G.Vijayaraghavan, Dr.Devi Shetty , Dr.A.K.Agarwal and some pretty impressive other voices to kick off our campaign, getting your attention so we could ask you what you would do if you were Clinical Cardiologist practicing only general cardiology.

We took to the doctors in training, and we asked them to work hard to prove them among the cardiology fraternity, and the response was amazing. Many famous professors in cardiology across the country spoke up, and the things that they said were important and valuable. This inspiration paved the way to organize the first Clinical Cardiology update of IACC during the month of April 2010. The event happens to be a big success and was really helpful for the entire exam going doctors as well as the practicing cardiologists. And the buzz had begun again in the following year, in 2011, IACC announced its 2nd event and the 1st International Conference in Echocardiography, CEDET -2011. Fellow cardiologists came across the world to attend the CEDET -2011. In November 2011, IACC had its 2nd Annual Clinical Cardiology Update IACCCON-2011 www.iacccon2011.org at Kolkata. Soon after in October 2012 IACC had its 3rd Annual Clinical Cardiology Update IACCCON-2012 www.iacccon2012.org at Mumbai. During 5th & 6th JANUARY 2013 IACC had its 2nd National Update on Comprehensive Echo Doppler Evaluation Techniques (CEDET-2013) at KIMS TRIVANDRUM. All were satisfied by the feast of knowledge we served during that conference. We have already begun the process, picking through the hopefuls in search of the face that will eventually be pardoning, thanksgiving some famous cardiologists, telling us what the state of the union is, and representing who we are, we the Clinical Cardiologists, to the rest of the world. But what will make that cardiologist any better qualified to represent us than any one of us will be.

Central IACC conducted another 2 day CME in clinical cardiology during 18th and 19th of May 2013 at KIMS Trivandrum Kerala. In 2013 we had our 7th event and 4th National Clinical Cardiology Update - "IACCCON-2013 Bangalore". During 11th & 12th JANUARY 2014 IACC had its 3rd National Update on Comprehensive Echo Doppler Evaluation Techniques (CEDET-2014) at KIMS TRIVANDRUM. This is where we come in, right now, as the 2014 conference loom on the horizon. IACC had its 5th National Clinical Cardiology Update - "IACCCON-2014 at OOTY Tamilnadu" during 17 to 19th October 2014.

This is when we speak. We are at it again, asking you to tell us what you would do if we announce our 9th event and 6th National Clinical Cardiology Update - "IACCCON-2015 DELHI". We are asking you to make a note in your diary the 23rd , 24th & 25th October 2015 at DELHI www.iacccondelhi.org to attend our next feast in Clinical Cardiology and do whatever it is that you do best. Also please mark your diary for next knowledge feast " IACCCON 2016 RANCHI" during 21st to 23rd October 2016 at RANCHI. We are listening. Now, speak, young Clinical Cardiologists across the country! This is your podium, and its your turn.

General Secretary - INDIAN ASSOCIATION OF CLINICAL CARDIOLOGISTS
SUB EDITOR - Indian Journal of Clinical Cardiology

Greetings of the day to all our beloved members !

The past year was one with a considerable impact on the existence of the Indian Association of Clinical Cardiologists, since our 'invasive counterparts' in one state turned against us and acted in unison to wipe out the entire Clinical cardiology practitioners, out from the world of medicine. The act was condemned by the medical fraternity as unethical since it damaged the dignity of medical practitioners altogether. Most of the drama was scripted by some immature post graduate students who presumed clinical cardiologists as a threat to their existence and coaxed all of the cardiology practitioners of the state to believe that this course and its practitioners should be banned. But the support from the Cardiologists of other states and other countries who understand the importance of preventive cardiology blended their support to our association and helped us overcome this meager egoistic professional jealousy induced activities amicably. We believe such unity must be shown in wiping out Cardiac diseases from the community, rather than making false statements about fellow colleagues.

Indian Association Of Clinical Cardiologists, has successfully established its roots in the national and international world of cardiology. The World Heart Federation has appreciated our efforts on community services performed on the World Heart Day, when around 20,000 patients were screened for CAD all over India.

I am appreciative of the approval nodes of our affiliates, American Heart Association, American College of Cardiology, European Society of Cardiology and European Society for Cardiovascular Surgery for the community services of our members as well as our constant ventures in cardiac updates.

IACC is making steady progress in inspiring its members for the betterment of their knowledge in the field of cardiology by the regular academic updates. The recent Zonal conference of IACC conducted for the South zone of India, gathered unexpected popularity and momentum and successfully achieved its goals in imparting the latest in Cardiology to practicing clinical cardiologists. The ongoing 6th national conference in New Delhi and the upcoming 7th National conference in Ranchi are sure to make us grow out and spread our wings in the right direction.

I wish all our members the best of everything.

Trust in yourself and trust in IACC !

We definitely have a long way ahead, together.

Long live Clinical Cardiology, God bless IACC !!!
